Introduction

Anesthesia is a way to control pain during a surgery or procedure by using medicine called anesthetics. Dentists can provide most types of anesthesia in their office, including general anesthesia. When a patient has a medical condition, it may be necessary for another skilled professional to give this medicine in place of the dentist. The patient may also need to have the procedure done in a place other than the dentist's office. In those cases, the anesthesia or other location may be covered under the member's medical benefit. Only certain medical conditions support this additional staff, service or special setting. This policy explains some of the circumstances when anesthesia may be covered by a member's medical benefit during a dental procedure.

Note: The Introduction section is for your general knowledge and is not to be taken as policy coverage criteria. The rest of the policy uses specific words and concepts familiar to medical professionals. It is intended for providers. A provider can be a person, such as a doctor, nurse, psychologist, or dentist. A provider also can be a place where medical care is given, like a hospital, clinic, or lab. This policy informs them about when a service may be covered.

Benefit Application

Note: Submission of a pre-service review request to the Dental Review Team is recommended before the dental treatment starts.

- Treatment professional services of a dentist with a general anesthesia permit or a licensed anesthesiologist when criteria are met.
- Medical procedures performed by oral surgeons or by a DDS, DMD, MD, or DO when medically necessary are eligible for medical benefits according to the same guidelines as surgeries performed on the rest of the body. Examples of oral surgeries, though not all-inclusive, are:
  - Excision of exostoses of the jaw and hard palate
  - Excision of tumors or cysts of the jaw, tongue, roof and floor of the mouth
  - Frenulectomy for congenital ankyloglossia (tongue tied only)
  - Incision and drainage of cellulitis of the oral region
  - Incision or excision of abscess of accessory sinuses, salivary glands or ducts
  - Surgical treatments required due to injuries that involve dental or oral conditions, such as fractures of the jaw, intra-oral lacerations, and dislocations.
- Treatment professional services of a dentist with a general anesthesia permit or a licensed anesthesiologist related to dental treatments in a hospital or outpatient facility may be paid under medical benefits when criteria are met.
- Professional payment for dental care is not covered under medical benefits except as specified in the member's contract.

Description

In limited situations, when specific risk factors or significant medical conditions are documented where a member cannot tolerate a dental treatment in the dental office setting, it may be necessary to receive the dental treatment in a hospital or outpatient surgical facility.

It may be necessary to receive deep sedation anesthesia (general anesthesia) by a dentist with a general anesthesia permit or a licensed anesthesiologist in a dental office, outpatient facility, or hospital.

General anesthesia as defined by the American Dental Association is a drug-induced loss of consciousness during which patients are not arousable, even by painful stimulation. The ability to independently maintain ventilatory function is often impaired. Patients often require assistance in maintaining a patent airway, and positive pressure ventilation may be required because of depressed spontaneous ventilation or drug induced depression of neuromuscular function. Cardiovascular function may be impaired.<sup>1</sup>

Rationale

According to the American Dental Association (ADA), in-office sedation has been a useful and cost-effective means to assist patients such as children, those afraid of the dentist, the behaviorally or medically challenged, as well as those with gagging problems, to receive dental care. The ADA has guidelines for the use of conscious sedation, deep sedation and general anesthesia. The ADA guideline recommends that patients must be evaluated prior to the start of any sedative treatment and especially when deep sedation/general anesthesia is being considered.<sup>1</sup>

Medicare has a statutory dental exclusion which states, "...where such expenses are for services in connection with the care, treatment, filling, removal or replacement of teeth or structures directly supporting teeth, except that payment may be made under part A in the case of inpatient hospital services in connection with the provision of such dental services if the individual, because of his underlying medical condition and clinical status or because of the severity of the dental procedure, requires hospitalization in connection with the provision of services."<sup>2</sup>

Patients with special health care needs may have behaviors that interfere with the safe delivery of a dental treatment. When in-office protective stabilization is not possible or effective, sedation using general anesthesia in a hospital or outpatient surgical facility may be necessary to provide treatment.<sup>3</sup>
